Book Nook

Book Nooks in Drnje and Hlebine are designed to popularize reading. Both corners are intended for students from 1st to 8th grade. Book Nooks will be used not only for project activities, but also for classes, socializing with books during big breaks or while waiting for the bus, and workshops with members of the TITLE team.

Among picture books for the youngest, students can find truly diverse titles - from fun books by David Walliams and Andy Griffiths to educational books for young people, such as "Our House on Fire", "Book Thief", "Crocodiles Live in the Sea", graphic novel "Zenobia" and the titles of Croatian authors Ivona Šajatović and Silvija Šesto. Lovers of space and nature can also find something for themselves. All titles were purchased for use in the Erasmus + TITLE project.

Month of Croatian books, Tactile picture books

During the school year seventh and eighth graders, members of the Bible Group, made tactile picture books and picture stories.

Based on the Bible text, the students first made a picture stories and then tactile picture books.

In the picture stories they replaced certain parts of the text with the matching picture. In making tactile picture books they used various fabrics and other materials to present the biblical text.

Students will donate these books to children with special needs who attend special school "Podravsko sunce".

Literary experiment

On January 25, 2020, students of schools in Drnje and Hlebine, parents and teachers participated in an interesting online literary evening called Literary experiment. The inspiration for the title was a part of the evening called Frog experiment, which was based on the story "Frogs are looking for a king" by Ivana Brlić-Mažuranić. The evening was organized by members of the Erasmus+ team TITLE Elena Belec, Martina Hrastić Farkaš and Stjepana Kadić.

After the introductory conversation, the students and their parents listened carefully to the story of Ivana Brlić-Mažuranić, and after each break they had to complete the sentence - anticipate further events in the text.

Such a flow of reading encouraged students and parents to think, sometimes to the exact sequence of events, and sometimes not, but offered solutions were ingenious and fun.

The next task for students and parents in certain groups was to read the story without a title, also as an example of family reading, after which they had to offer or guess the title of the text. During this part of the evening the participants talked about topics such as peer violence, everyday difficulties, both at school and in the family, and life in general.

By filling out the evaluation questionnaire, the students expressed their satisfaction with the participation and suggested even more tasks, which the members of the TITLE Erasmus + team will be very happy to provide them next time. In addition to enriching vocabulary and for to learning, reading is very important for the development of imagination, which is needed at all stages of life. With the book you read, you can travel the whole world, each in his own way.

Unlocking lines

Motivated by the book Susan Zimmermann and Chryse Hutchins "7 keys to reading comprehension", teacher Elena Belec and school librarian Stjepana Kadić held two workshops entitled "Unlocking lines" on February 11, 2021 with sixth graders.

Seven keys were elaborated in the mentioned book, but due to lack of time, space and due to epidemiological measures, the workshop leaders decided to work with the students to start processing three keys to reading comprehension. Teacher Elena Belec guided the students through the text with the help of creating sensory images, choosing the text "A cup of coffee" by Ivan Cankar. Encouraged by the imagination, the students themselves created sensory images of the given experiences, which were similar for some students, and completely different for some.

Recognition of the essential in the text and synthesis of what was read with the article "Return of Belle and Edward" from February's issue of "Blue Swallows" magazine was led by school librarian Stjepana Kadić. Students had to determine what was important, look for new facts and highlight the essentials, so that they could finally retell the most important parts of the text.

In the evaluation questionnaire, the students expressed their desire to repeat such workshops, which will be organized for them by the end of this school year.

Beauty tips vs. Science

In order to encourage the reading of scientific articles in students, teacher Dunja Valenčak held workshops as part of the Erasmus+ project TITLE where students researched scientific articles, whether or not beauty tips are scientifically based.

The students watched a video on Youtube, by famous beauty influencer Hude Beauty (<https://tinyurl.com/2m93nxc6>), after which they analyzed the content, singling out keywords.

It was a hair recovery technique: microneedling. After generally informing about this technique, students had to find scientific articles on the basis of scientific papers (<https://www.sciencedirect.com/>) that prove or refute the advice given. BEAUTY TIP: the microneedling technique can be used to stimulate hair growth after baldness occurs. The result of this study is shown in posters.

ESTONIA

Literature week 2020.

Literature minutes week took place in our school during the Children's and Youth Literature Week in October 2020. All classes took part in it and the biggest reading enthusiast at our school, teacher Mare Kiisk, was behind the whole enterprise. The point and content of the event was that throughout the week, our own teachers went to different classes, opening their perspectives on reading and literature to the children, introducing some of their favorite books. It was a recently read book or a childhood favorite. Although there were slightly fewer participating teachers than last year, Mare Kiisk thought that the small decline in quantity was fully compensated by the increase in quality. In addition to the teachers, 4th grade students also lined up on the side of the performers, who went to read the book fragments to the 1st grade children. A total of 11 teachers attended the students.

"IF LAST YEAR IT WAS MORE LIKE THE FIRST TIME WE TAKE, DO AND TRY WHAT COMES OUT, THEN THIS YEAR IT WAS MORE MEANINGFUL, WHICH WAS ILLUSTRATED BY MORE INFORMED CHOICES AND GREATER EXPERIENCE. THE CHILDREN LISTENED WITH EXCITEMENT AND WERE ALSO ACTIVE PARTICIPANTS. AT LEAST WHERE I MANAGED TO PARTICIPATE"

Choosing 5 famous Estonian authors, Introducing Estonian authors - collecting data, Introducing Estonian authors - a short video of each author 8th grade pupils did some research on 5 famous Estonian authors - Gustav Suits, Marie Under, Kristiina Ehin, Ellen Niit and Jaan Kross. The authors were chosen in cooperation with the Estonian language teachers. They suggested researching authors who would be introduced in the 8th grade. Pupils grouped up and worked on collecting data and creating informative posters.

During 90 minutes, pupils got to plan out and film the short introductory clips of 5 famous Estonian authors. The clips were presented to the whole group and uploaded to eTwinning.

*Competition of creating,
New Estonian words*

Kreteli Sibul

One of the most interesting events that took place within the TITLE project in Tartu Raatuse School was the new words competition “Break Language Into The Pieces!” (13. 02. - 25. 03. 2021.).

All students were welcomed to participate, and at each school level, an 8-member jury of students and teachers selected two new words, the author of which received a small prize in addition to honor and fame. In the contest annotation it was said that the words could be either the same meaning as the existing Estonian words or foreign loans or English terms used in the language that do not have a real Estonian equivalent.

A total of 128 new word candidates were received for the competition. The members of the jury admitted that the top of the best words was definitely very dignified and those words were really very bright.

1st school level

1st place - Mark Ander Metsmaa (2. b) – kovitiivne (covitive) – describes the situation when person is Covid19-positive.

2nd place - Kreete Kivi (3. c) – irumaadiline muusika (irumadic music) - gentle, beautiful music

2nd school level

1st place - Dagne Savi (5. a) - mäpu - memory stick

2nd place - Getter Leuska (4. b) - energla - place for sports

3rd school level

1st place - Mia Raud (8. b) - isolus/iselus – isolated state/isolation/to be in isolation

2nd place - Kreteli Onion (9. b) - sabakud - tails or mittens, which can also be worn as gloves. Known as fingertips. Eg "Grandma knitted new tails for me."

The jury wanted to award many more students, but let's point out three special students: Kreteli Sibul, Kirke Juurikas, Liisa Poll.

Reading this a hidden meaning very difficult to recognize but also very profound

The poem is about a boy who while swimming to school imagines other ways to go there. Reading has a hidden but very profound meaning. It makes you understand that we must not completely about what we have because in the world there are people who dream of what for us everyday life.

I always have to walk to school, but I'm not too upset. I'd rather fly, but imagine if I had to swim (what?) I'd rather walk than do both: crash a man is not a fish.
